Table of Contents

Acknowledgements 7

Chapter 1:
The misery of defining what scientific knowledge is—and what not 9
Michael Kuhn and Hebe Vessuri

Section I: Alternative concepts of knowledge

Chapter 2:
Towards a dialogue between knowledge systems. Learning experiences in indigenous contexts in Mexico 21
Juan Pablo Vázquez Gutiérrez and Pablo Reyna Esteves

Chapter 3:
Alternatives to Nostalgia for Colonial Ethnology in the African Postcolonial Theory 41
Léon-Marie Nkolo Ndjodo

Chapter 4:
The Interlinkages between Western and Indigenous Psychology in 20th- and early 21st-century India 73
Christiane Hartnack

Chapter 5:
Knowledge as Interaction: An Alternative Epistemology from Rural Mexico 85
Roger Magazine

Chapter 6:
Indigenous knowledge in the social sciences: comunalidad and the challenge to Western categories 101
Claudia Magallanes-Blanco and Leandro Rodriguez-Medina

Chapter 7:
What can Science and Technology Studies do with and for Latin America? 123
Ivan da Costa Marques

Chapter 8:
Decolonising social sciences in remote Australia 143
Michael Christie

Chapter 9:
Culturalising Social Knowledges as a Critique of Euro-American Social Sciences: Learning from Deconstructing Poverty in the Shadow of Gandhian Social Theory..... 151
Kumaran Rajagopal

Chapter 10:
Rereading of Metaphysical Foundations of Humanities in the Light of the Qur'an's Teachings 163
Qodratullah Qorbani

Section II: Contributions to the discourse about alternative concepts of knowledge

Chapter 11:
What is foreign knowledge? 187
Leandro Rodriguez Medina

Chapter 12:
Alternatives to the Globalising Humanities and Social Sciences: Comments to the ideas presented at the Mexico WSSHNetwork workshop..... 231
Michael Christie

Chapter 13:
Some comments about spatiological thinking—the final universalisation of the "European" social sciences 243
Michael Kuhn

Biographical Notes 269